

In this configuration, multiple computers could control the PT head, using a simple port server device. It would be best to have a way to schedule usage, so that the different users would not be fighting each other for control of the PT head.

